$4000 Appropriation For The Stikine River Trail

Mr. Matheson is in receipt of a letter on a late boat from the Forest Supervisor, Mr. Weigle, at Ketchikan, in which he stated that the Forestry Department was working for a $4,000 appropriation for the building of the Stikine trail that the local Chamber of Commerce has been working for during the past winter. While the appropriation has not as yet been made it is almost an assured fact that it will be in the near future.

This is a much larger appropriation than we had hoped for and certainly means much for Wrangell. That a trail is needed and badly needed was shown during the past month when Mr. Strong made the trip to Telegraph up the Stikine and from their own account of the trip it is almost impossible while if a good trail is built, as it will be, all this hardship will be done away with and except for breaking trail the trip will be shorn of its hardships. Mr. Weigle will be in Wrangell in the near future to look over the route and make his plans for the season work.

The Wrangell Shingle Mill is getting steam up and their whistle can be heard every noon along with the rest. They expect to be cutting shingles before the week is over as they are only waiting for logs.

First Portland Steamer Arrived Monday Night

The first steamer to dock from Portland to Alaska since 1897 the Thos. L. Wand docked at the local wharf shortly before midnight last Monday, March 9th, making the trip from Portland to Wrangell in less than five days. The coming of the Wand makes a new opening in the outlet of Alaskan products and a new line of commerce for this territory.

The Wand was in command of Capt. F. Harriman and Pilot A. C. Jensen both well known Alaskan navigators having plied these waters for a number of years.

The Wand is a three mast freight boat 174 feet long with a beam of 38 feet and is 413 tons register.

The Wand came north by the outside passage touching first at Ketchikan entering the inside passage at Dixon's Entrance, and will call at all the important ports as far as Skagway. The intention is also to touch at Prince Rupert and Sitka and ports on the West Coast as soon as business offers.

The J. B. Stetson will be the next Portland boat sailing from that port the 10th and should arrive here next Saturday and will be followed on the 18th by the Quinault. These two boats both carry passengers.

The freight and passenger rates are the same as those charged by the Seattle lines. The fare being $22 from here to Portland.

He Certainly Had Nerve.
The man is considerable of a bore. He was calling on a girl the other night and had stayed so long that she was somewhat fatigued. About midnight he began to talk about his health. "I'm not well," he said; "it's just my nerve that is keeping me up."
She couldn't resist the temptation. "What's what's keeping me up, too," she said.
A few minutes later he said he guessed he'd have to go.—New York Telegram.

Wm. Strong, Eddie Calkins,

Barker and Deck two natives, arrived down from Telegraph Creek late last Monday evening.

Wm. Strong and Eddie Calkins are returning from a trip that they made there leaving here on the 18th of last month they went thru to Telegraph and spent a couple of days there and returned and met the rest of the party at the boundary and they came in together.
They report a good trip down but a very hard trip up as the snow was deep and soft, making trail breaking very hard. Most of the trip up was made on half rations for both men and dogs.

Big Picture At The Rink

"The Vengeance of Durand" at the Rink next Saturday evening.
It is positively the greatest drama ever shown in our city. We will show you Father, Mother, and Daughter, fairly happy, but very rich. A foster brother to the mother returns from his art studies in Paris. The father through unfounded jealousy provokes a quarrel with the young man. A duel is fought. It will always remain a mystery as to who killed the mother as she ran between the two contestants. The father brings up the young daughter to womanhood teaching her to hate the man that killed her mother, as he teaches her to believe the young man did so. See the great fire scene, which is a marvel for perfectness of de-ist are united in that bond of friendship that ends in all being happy for evermore.
